MY DEAR LITTLE FRIENDS

TO THE TEACHERS.

"We have not wings, we cannot soar,
But we have feet to scale and climb."

IF the course of study in many cities be examined, it will be found that the program in reading for the first year of school is the first half of such books as are provided.

What is the significance of this? That the larger share of the first-year books are too difficult to be completed by the class, and therefore a part of the book is left unread.

The first half of the book can be mastered, but the children are overwhelmed by the flood of words which are introduced in the second half, and must sink back to the uninteresting beginning of another book where, when they have once more reached a point where reading seems to hold some pleasure and profit, they are again defeated by the too numerous words, and must begin the routine anew.

What are the consequences of scaling these different ladders, only to be cast back again to the foot when a prospect begins to dawn upon the view, and the toilsome rounds of the ladder cease to fill the eye and mind? Lack of interest and expression, loss of time. A child at the end of four or five months' work has gained in mental power. He is able to learn new words more readily, he can grasp the meaning of a sentence with less effort, and he is certainly able to go on as rapidly as when he first began to read.

This is realized by those who write the first readers ; but they lose sight of the other fact that he is still but a beginner, and must retain what he has learned as well as acquire the new words, and so the vocabulary is introduced too rapidly for the struggling brain.

We primary teachers have not had proper tools. Like the Israelites of old we have been forced to make our bricks without straw, and it is due to the supplementary work upon blackboard and paper that the work in reading has had its success.

I have aimed to make the simple stories such as will interest the children and help them to a love of each other and of Nature, and to catch some glimpse of God's love, which underlies it all. I believe this the true preparation for scientific and natural history work which can be introduced very early.

Children do appreciate much that is beyond them ; and, with this in mind, I have suggested from time to time some poem to be read to the class, hoping that the simple little story preceding it may have led them into the spirit to receive it.

Very sincerely yours,

ELLEN M. CYR.

Good morning, little Elsie!

Where are you going this bright morning?

Good morning, grandpa! I am going to see Grace.

Why aren't you going to school?

Why, grandpa! It is Saturday.

We have no school on Saturday.

Didn't you know that?

Grace and I are going to play house.

Have you seen my new doll?

No, I don't think I have.

Did mamma give you that doll?

Yes, she gave it to me
on my birthday.

You know that I am six years old now.

Where is your dolly's cap?

She hasn't any cap, grandpa.

Your poor doll will take cold.

Ask grandma to make one for her.

I know that she will.

See my doll's funny carriage.
I am at grandpa's house.

He hasn't any little girls now.
 Mamma was his little girl.
 I brought my dolls with me.
 I couldn't bring my doll carriage.
 Mamma said it was too big.
 Grandma looked for a carriage for me.
 She said that the dustpan would do.
 I think it is a funny carriage.
 Don't fall off, my little dolls!
 You couldn't fall very far.
 We are going to see Grace.
 See! she is looking for me.
 We are going to blow bubbles.
 Do you see my pipe?
 I put it on the dustpan.
 We shall have a good time.
 Grace has a pipe too.
 I like to blow bubbles.
 They are so pretty.

Mamma took us to the woods last Saturday.

We carried our lunch in a big basket.
 We had a long ride in the horse-cars.
 Then we came to such a pretty wood.
 Annie couldn't come with us.

She is sick.

She can't go anywhere now.

Annie is my playmate.

We found some pretty violets.

There were some other flowers too.

I liked the violets best.

I found such a pretty violet plant.

It had eight violets on it.

I said that I wished Annie could see it.

"So she shall," said mamma.

"You may take it home to her."

Mamma had a knife in the basket.

She took the plant up with the knife.

I carried it home to Annie.

She was so glad to have it.

I love the daisies and grasses.
I swing on the golden-rod and bushes.
I am so happy and gay.
In the winter I go south.
I fly to the rice fields.
I eat all the rice that I can.
They call me the ricebird.
They do not like me very well.
I think the rice grows for me.
I catch bugs and flies and worms.
I think I should have some rice too.

 At first it is a little worm.
 The bees feed it with pollen.
 They gather pollen from the flowers.
 Pollen looks like yellow dust.

She heard a loud humming.

It was too loud for a bee.

It was a little humming-bird.

Marion stood still to watch it.

How fast its little wings went!

It had a very long bill.

It could reach deep into the flowers.

The humming-bird eats honey.

It gets it from the flowers.

It is a very tiny bird.

It has a little nest of moss.

The nest holds two little eggs.

How tiny the baby birds must be!

Marion watched for the humming-bird

One day she took one

She put some sugar and water into it.

Then she put it in the garden.

So she made five little birds

“Fred, my little snow birds are gone,” she said.

“Look over in the field!” said Fred.

“There are five little snow birds.”

What a happy time they have!

They are no longer dark and dull.

They shine and are bright with colors.

Some are red, some orange, and some yellow.

Others are green, blue, indigo,
 or violet.

They make a bright path across the sky.

This path is called a rainbow.

It is made by the sun on the raindrops.

Each raindrop helps to make it.

The clouds alone are dull and dark.

The sunlight makes them bright and beautiful.

What do you think our baby did?
 There is an old man who sells candy.
 One day we took baby there.
 We let her buy some candy.
 She gave a penny to the old man.
 He gave her some candy.
 The other day we found her in the street.

She had on her little cap and coat.
She had her baby doll in one hand.

“Why, baby! where are you going?”

I said.

“Get candy!” said the baby.

“But why do you take the dolly?”

“Dolly want candy too.”

“You can’t get candy, dear;

You haven’t any penny.”

“Yes! yes! see my penny!”

What do you think she had?

It was a big button.

She was going to buy candy with it.

Wasn’t she a funny baby?

Could she buy candy with a button?

I think the old man would have given her some.

He is a very kind old man.

said papa.

“Oh, please teach me, mamma,” said Anna.

“Some time you may learn,”
said mamma.

“I haven’t time to teach you now.”
Anna went to see grandma.

“Grandma, will you teach me to cook?”
she said.

“Yes, dear,” said grandma;

“You may cook something to-day.”

“Oh, thank you!” said Anna.

“It will please papa to have me learn.”

“His birthday comes very soon,” said grandma.

“You shall make him a birthday cake.
I used to make them when he was a little boy.”

“Did you put candles on it, grandma?”

“I used to; but it would take forty now.”

“Oh, dear,” said Anna, “I couldn’t get forty candles.”

Anna did her best to learn.

By and by the birthday came.

Anna made the birthday cake.

She took it home to papa.

She put it beside his plate.

“Well! what is this?” said papa.

“A birthday cake for you.”

“Who made me a birthday cake?”

“I did,” said Anna; “grandma told me how.”

“What! you made this pretty cake!

What a dear little girl you are!

I haven’t had a birthday cake for a long time.”

“I wish I could put forty candles on it,” said Anna.

“It is all right, my little girl,” said papa.

“The cake is too small for so many.

I am very much pleased with it.”

Edith was very fond of Molly.
 Molly was Aunt Annie's cow.
 She was a very kind cow.
 She would let Edith pat her.

Edith picked some clover for her to eat.

She liked to see John milk her.

He carried the milk-pail into the house.

Then Edith drank the fresh milk.

She put some cream on her berries.

She put the sweet butter on her bread.

“Molly gives me so much!” she said.

Edith went to see Aunt Annie

She was glad to be in the country.

“How good Molly’s milk is!” she said.

“Molly has something to show you,” said Uncle Henry.

He took her out to the fields.

There was a pretty little calf.

“Oh, you dear little calf!” said Edith.

Edith gave the calf some clover.

It would eat from her hand.

The calf became very fond of Edith.

“I wish Marion could have some.
She has been sick a long time.
Perhaps I shall see something to give

There was a cart in front of the store.
There were plants in the cart.

“Buy a plant, little girl,” said the man.

“Here is a fine one for ten cents.”

“Marion would like a plant,” said

Mrs. Duck gave a party.
It was the first one of the summer.
All the ducks in the barnyard were there.
They had a swim up the river.

They found a quiet place.

“We will have our lunch here,”
said Mrs. Duck.

“There are many insects here.
This is a good place to find food.”
Down into the mud she went,
head first.

Down into the mud the other ducks went, too.

Then they came up again.

Ducks have large flat beaks.

They fill these beaks with mud.

There are insects in the mud.

There are little teeth at the side of the duck's beak.

These keep the food in,

but let the muddy water run out.

What a good time the ducks had!

Some old frogs sat on the lily pads.

They watched the ducks swim about.

“What funny things ducks are!”

they said.

“How do you do, Mrs. Duck?”

said one.

“Do you live in the water
all the time?”

“No, indeed,” said Mrs. Duck.

“Our home is up at the farm.

We have a house like people.”

“Well! well! why do they make a house for you?”

They never make a house for us.”

“We lay eggs for them,”

said Mrs. Duck.

“So do we lay eggs,” said the frog.

“You lay your eggs in the water.

People do not care for them.

Our eggs are large and good to eat.”

Mr. Hill was a farmer who had a pleasant home.

He wished some little children could be there.

He sent to some people in the city.
He told them to send him
two poor children.

They sent Jimmie and Mary.

How happy the children were!

They ran about in the fields.

They picked berries and flowers.

They could help Mr. and Mrs. Hill

Jimmie learned to milk the cows.

Mary learned to skim the cream.

Jimmie could rake the hay.

Mary could rake the hay too.

The children used to ride

Mr. Hill let them drive the horse.
They liked to go for a drive.

They saw so many wonderful things.
“What a beautiful world this is!”
they said.

“We never knew it was so wonderful

They are not going back to the Home.
“We cannot let them go,”
said Mr. Hill.

“They shall stay and live with us.”
Jimmie and Mary are very happy.

Freddie's mamma had told him that caterpillars became butterflies.

He wanted to watch one change for himself.

One day he found a caterpillar in the garden.

He took it on a leaf to mamma.

She gave him a little box to keep it in.

Freddie gave it fresh leaves every day.

By and by the caterpillar stopped eating.

Freddie thought it would die.

Mamma said, "No, Freddie, it is going to sleep.

When it wakes it will be a butterfly."

The caterpillar spun a web about itself.

It had a thick white covering.

It hung from one side of the box.

"It is dead, mamma!" said Freddie.

“It does not move nor eat.”

“It is not dead,” said mamma.

One day Freddie went to the box.

He saw a strange looking insect.

Its wings were not pretty and bright.

He called mamma to see it.

“It is your butterfly,” said mamma.

“How strange and homely it is!”

said Freddie.

“I thought it would be a pretty butterfly.”

Soon it began to move and spread out its wings.

The colors grew bright.

“Oh, how beautiful!” said Freddie.

It spread its wings and flew to the window.

Freddie opened the window and let it fly away.

“ You see it was not dead,” said mamma.
 “ The butterfly was there all the time.
 It was like my lily.
 I put the homely bulb into the ground.
 A beautiful lily has come from it now.”

A CHILD TO A ROSE.

Did it feel like dying,
 When first your blossoms fell?
 Did you know about the spring,
 Did the daisies tell?
 If you had no notion,
 Only fear and doubt,
 How I should have liked to see
 When you found it out!
 Such a beautiful surprise,
 What must you have felt,
 When your heart began to stir,
 As the sun began to melt!

Poor papa could not go.

He had to stay at the store.

“What shall I do without you?”
said he.

“I will write you a letter,” said Elsie.

“I will tell you what we are doing.”

“Can you write a letter?” said papa.

“Oh! yes, I can,” said Elsie.

“I am seven years old.

You shall see that I can write a letter.”

Elsie had a very good time!

One day she said, “Grandma, may I take a pen?

I wish to write to papa.”

“Yes,” said grandma, “there are some pens on the desk.”

Elsie ran to grandpa’s desk.

“Oh, grandma! here is such a funny pen.”

“That is a quill pen,” said grandma.

“Grandpa made it for me.

It is made of a goose feather.

Every one used to write with quill pens.”

“I think it is pretty,” said Elsie.

“I don’t think I will write with it.”

She took a pen and went away
by herself.

By and by she went back to the desk.
What did she see there?

Baby had taken the quill pen.

She had been writing to papa.

Such a letter as she had written!

She had spilled the ink upon the desk.

“Oh, baby, baby! why did you do so?”

Mamma sent baby's letter to papa.

He said he was glad to have both letters.

“I am old — so old I can write a letter,
My birthday lessons are done.

ELSIE'S LETTER TO PAPA.

Hillside, July 8th, 1910.

My dear Papa,

We are having a very good time here. Grandpa has a big gray horse. Sometimes he puts me on its back. It is such fun! I play out in the fields. Grandpa lets me ride on the hay. I pick berries for grandma. We have cream on our berries. I wish you were here with us. Baby has written you a letter. She took grandma's quill pen, and she spilled the ink. Can you read her letter? She says it is, "How do, papa? I love you."

Your loving little girl,

Elsie.

She wore it to school one day.
Poor little May looked at her.
She wished she had a pretty apron.
When Elsie came home, she went

She said, “Mamma, may I give May my apron?”

Her dress is very old and poor.
She is a dear little girl.
Please let me give her my apron.”
Her mamma said, “Yes, you may
if you wish;

I cannot make you another.”
Elsie asked May to come home with her.

She gave her the white apron.

Elsie's mamma put it on her.

Little May was very happy.

"Thank you, Elsie," she said.

"It will hide my old dress.

I never had so pretty an apron."

May wore the apron to school.

Elsie liked to see her wear it.

"I could not see it as well

"Now I can look at it as much as I please."

She was never sorry that she gave it to May.

Daisy's birthday comes in June.
The field daisies come then too.
Daisy calls them her flowers.

“ May I have a birthday party,

“ You shall have a ‘ daisy party , ’ ”
said mamma.

“ The children shall play

They shall each have a daisy chain.”

Ten children came to the party.

Daisy’s papa put them into the big wagon.

He drove over to the daisy fields.

Daisy looked like one of the flowers.

Her dress was white and her hair was yellow.

All the children were very happy.

They picked as many daisies as they could carry.

Mamma gave them some ice cream and cake.

They ate under the trees.
The little birds looked down upon them.

“We shall have a party when they go,” they said.

“See all the crumbs they are making.
Let us sing to them now.”

A red squirrel was looking at the children.

He was up in an oak tree.

Daisy saw him watching them.

“See that dear little squirrel,” she said.

“He has come to my party.

Here is a little cake for him.”

They flow into the rivers.
The rivers flow into the sea.

“We are green all winter.
You have no leaves or blossoms.
Why should people give pails to you?”
“We have sweet sap,” said the maples.

“It is beginning to creep up

ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE NORMAL CHILD AND PRIMARY EDUCATION

By ARNOLD L. GESELL, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Education, Yale University, and BEATRICE CHANDLER GESELL, Ed.B., Formerly Primary Training
Teacher in Los Angeles State Normal School

8vo, cloth, x + 342 pages, illustrated, $1.25

THIS comprehensive, nontechnical survey of the field of primary education will be of interest to the general reader as well as to the teacher and the normal-school student. The discussion includes both theory and practice, emphasizing the scientific basis of pedagogical method.

The earlier chapters treat the historical and the genetic backgrounds of education, taking up such subjects as Humanitarianism and the Child, The Scientific Interpretation of Life, The Biological Perspective, The Primitive Ancestry of the Child, and The Hand of the Race and of the Child. The chapters of Parts III and IV discuss in detail primary-school methods of pedagogy. The appendix contains a critical exposition of the Montessori system of primary education. The treatment is specific with reference to the practical problems, broad and suggestive with reference to the large themes which serve as a background philosophy for the pedagogy, and concrete always. The text is enriched by copious and attractive illustrations.

The authors believe that "the ordinary primary child is far below his possibilities," and "The Normal Child and Primary Education" aims to elevate and to correct the prevailingly low and vague standards of normality.

THE CYR READERS

THIS series is noteworthy, first of all, because it embodies a delightful personality. The spirit of the author is felt in every book. It quickens the children's enthusiasm, enlarges their interest, and makes them forget the drudgery of learning to read. The series also has a definiteness of purpose that appeals instantly to the observant teacher. It leads the pupil by careful and graded steps over a wide field of American and English literature from Longfellow and Whittier to Milton and Shakespeare.

CYR'S GRADED ART READERS

By ELLEN M. CYR, Author of the Cyr Readers

Book One. The Cyr Advanced First Reader. 12mo, cloth, 104 pages, illustrated in tint, 30 cents

Book Two. 12mo, cloth, 136 pages, illustrated in tint, 35 cents

Book Three. 12mo, cloth, 204 pages, illustrated in tint, 50 cents

MISS CYR is probably one of the very few children's authors capable of accomplishing with unquestioned skill and good taste the task of writing a simple story, based on the masterpiece of some famous painter, that will ring true to the young reader and at the same time avoid belittling the painting and the artist.

No series of readers is more popular among the schools throughout the country than the Cyr, and probably none is so widely used.

For supplementary use the Graded Art Readers are unsurpassed in their beauty of illustration, simplicity of thought, and æsthetic development of the child mind.

In the whole realm of schoolbooks there are probably no other pictures so artistically engraved and printed. They at least rival the best illustrations to be found in the literary and artistic magazines. — Colorado School Journal

CYR'S DRAMATIC FIRST READER

By ELLEN M. CYR, Author of the Cyr Readers

12mo, cloth, 104 pages, illustrated by EDITH B. BRAND, 30 cents

THIS decided departure from the usual reading book has been written to satisfy the demand for more scope for action and expression in the early reading lessons. The stories are written in dialogue form and can be played or acted if the teacher so desires. The matter is full of life and will stimulate and delight the imagination of the child. The numerous illustrations are at once attractive and valuable in explaining the text.

THE MOTHER TONGUE

(REVISED EDITION)

By GEORGE LYMAN KITTREDGE, Professor of English in Harvard University, and SARAH LOUISE ARNOLD, Dean of Simmons College, formerly Supervisor of Schools, Boston

Book I. Lessons in Speaking, Reading, and Writing English. 12mo, cloth, 322 pages, 45 cents.

Book II. An Elementary English Grammar. 12mo, cloth, xxii + 358 pages, 60 cents.

Book II. With Composition. 12mo, cloth, xxii + 454 pages, 70 cents.

THE purpose of this series of language books is to guide children to an intelligent appreciation and enjoyment of good English, to help them to speak and write correctly, and to teach them the elements of English grammar in relation to thought and expression.

The revised edition brings the books thoroughly up to date in matter and method, new exercises, a new arrangement, and new illustrations having been incorporated. No other texts on the subject develop so sensibly the cumulative plan, or so emphatically present the essentials of grammar. These explain and illustrate where other books give definitions. They teach principles rather than arbitrary rules.

The stories and illustrations in Book I make the work especially attractive to children. The publication of Book II, with or without composition, and the addition of diagrammatical work in a section by itself, so that the teacher may use it at will, make the book particularly adaptable to the needs of varying classes.
